

CASE: FACTORY BERLIN

Area: Berlin, Germany

Products used: Acoustic Panels, Acoustic Tiles

Architect: nod Studios

Project lead: Maria Guenther

Factory Berlin is a collective co-working space, inspired by Andy Warhol's famed Factory studio in New York. Bringing together an international community of innovators, creators and changemakers, Factory Berlin is one of a growing number of co-working environments in the area. Designed by nod studios, an all-female interior design practice also based in the city, the space features a separate area called The Moonbase. This part of the complex has 8 "bases" across 4 floors, each with a vibrant interior intended to mirror the energy of the startups housed there. BAUX Acoustic Wood Wool Panels and Tiles feature heavily in The Moonbase.

Products used:

Acoustic wood-wool Panels — Diagonal.

Acoustic wood-wool Tiles — Hexagons.
